Golden Jubilee of St. Mary's Society

Temperance Organization Observes Its Anniversary with Stirring Addresses by Brilliant Speakers—Mayor Thayer, Rev. Dr. John Neale, State Attorney Hull, State President J. J. Fitzgerald and John T. Shea Heard with Deep Interest—Others Renew History and Extend Congratulations.

Blazing out the news of its golden jubilee celebration in the heart of the city, the front of its building, St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Beneficent Society marked its half century anniversary on Wednesday evening with a programme worthy of its fine record of fifty years in which it has valiantly upheld the banner of temperance in this city.

Strings of electric lights festooned the front of the building and in the most prominent place were the dates 1861-1911 in big electric figures.

At the invitation of the local society, whose committee have been faithfully and unceasingly planning and working for the golden jubilee celebration for several months, a number of the officers of the list including a large representation of the Catholic clergymen of this vicinity, a number of the officers of the C. T. A. U. of Connecticut and also of the C. T. A. U. of America. There were present also by invitation the officers of over a score of Catholic organizations in this part of the state who rejoiced with St. Mary's in their notable record in the past half century.

Twenty-five years ago the society observed its silver anniversary in Broad hall, but in the intervening time the society has erected its own building on Broadway, where it hospitably welcomed and entertained on Wednesday evening the 500 who thronged the hall when the programme opened.

On the stage an effective decorative background scheme was arranged with a large picture of Father Mathew, the Apostle of Temperance. In the center, red, white and blue with American

He said in part: It gives me great pleasure to be with you tonight, not only because I find myself again, after so many years of absence, in the city of my birth, but because I once lived and labored, but because I am thus able to share in your jubilation and add my tribute of praise and appreciation to old St. Mary's and to the great cause for which for the past fifty years it has so courageously stood.

Times were, within the memory of those yet living, when it required courage to declare oneself a total abstainer, and almost heresim to preach it to others. It is true that at the time of the organization of the society in 1861 thousands bewailed the evils of intemperance. But the thousands proposed no remedy. The use of strong drink is not, people then said, wrong per se. To ask us to abstain from it altogether is to meddle with our personal liberty. Besides, enemies would be aroused. Tempers would be ruffled. Vested interests would be put in jeopardy. He who thus utters up things is a fool or a fanatic. By all means let us leave these things in the hands of Providence.

Such were the honest sentiments of good men at the beginning of the total abstinence movement. Nor is this wondered at when we recall how universal among those who had condemned was the drink habit among the best and most respectable portions of society. The become intoxicated, and that frequently—was not looked upon as a disgraceful thing, but as the privilege of a gentleman.

The records of most of the native churches in the early history of this country in matters pertaining to the ordination of ministers and the wedding of meeting houses are very illuminating on this point. The curious will find there that at both of these deeply religious ceremonies much strong drink was very often consumed. At town elections, too—which not infrequently took place in the church—a barrel of Large Gathering.

While the audience was gathering in the hall, solo songs were rendered by Miller's orchestra of six pieces, and shortly after 8 o'clock the overture by the orchestra opened the formal programme.

Besides the speakers, the list of invited guests, some of whom were seated on the platform, included the Revs. Thomas A. Grady, William Kennedy and J. J. Ambot, all of this city, Rev. C. T. McCann of Norwich town, Rev. P. J. O'Reilly of Danversville, Rev. Arthur Kose of Taftville, Rev. W. E. Keefe of Volintown, Rev. O. Bellerose of Baltic, Rev. John McCarthy of Worcester, Rev. William Gilday of Torrington, Rev. John Dooley of Waterbury, a former chaplain of the society, Rev. John Winfield of New Britain, Rev. F. B. Desautel of Occum, Frank Kinney, Branford, state secretary, John J. Borbett, New Haven, state treasurer and vice president of the national C. T. A. U., Miss Cecelia Donovan, Hartford, state editor, John Kelly and M. J. Kinney, New Britain, and Michael Keyes, Bridgeport, former state officers, William Gleason, Torrington, Michael Good, New Haven, James F. Brennan, New Britain, and John J. Brennan, New Britain, former national vice president, Dennis McCarthy, Providence, the first vice president of the state organization and known for many years as the warhorse of the organization, Dr. Patrick Cassidy, J. J. Desmond and James Duggan of this city.

Seated in the four front rows of the audience were other of the specially invited guests, including the members of the court of common council and through the influence of invited organizations, other prominent citizens, and a delegation of the St. Mary's Cadets in their khaki uniforms.

Past President Murphy.

President William H. McGuinness briefly called the meeting to order and welcomed those present. Mr. Murphy, the chairman of the evening, James J. Casey, who introduced in a few words the first speaker, Charles O. Murphy, past president of the society and of the state C. T. A. U.

Expressing his great pleasure in welcoming those present, Mr. Murphy spoke of the part taken by the society in shaping public opinion on the temperance question, and referred to the many years of the society's existence, and closed with the wish that the temperance work might continue till no Catholic name shall be associated with the liquor traffic.

Rev. Dr. John Neale.

Loud applause greeted Mr. Murphy and also the introduction of Rev. John Neale, LL. D., of St. Michael's church, Westbury, who told his hearers that he had come to this occasion with the promise that he would meet the best in Connecticut, and he was convinced of the truth of this when he looked into the faces of his audience.

WILLIAM H. MCGUINNESS,
President.

rum was generally on tap in the basement for the voters.

Such customs, mark you, were countenanced and indulged in by the most moral and God-fearing people of these days. If all these things have become changed, if it is no longer fashionable or good form to become intoxicated; if the public conscience has been educated to such a point that it is universally recognized that alcoholic stimulation is no longer necessary.
